Examinators kursanalys

Vilka styrkor har kursen?

- Keep the freedom in choosing their prototype presentation mode.
- Keep the grouping style.
- The workshop structures and final report format will be kept the same as many students found it both constructive and fun.
- The instructions for the course format, syllabus, and workshops were very detailed and ready from early on. Next year, the instructions for the final report will be posted early on as well. This was not very problematic, in the first place since we worked with the report from the first workshop. so by the time the end of the classes and workshops, the reports were already written. they only required refinement for the final report deadline.
- We had plenty of lectures around ethical themes, what is non-ethical, what can go wrong, etc. for example, the ethics of defining and evaluating intelligence, bias, surveillance, labor and automation, planetary resources, disability and accessibility. Then we had two lectures about speculative and provocative design. so both the ethical and the design themes were covered to the best of our ability. this was appreciated by the students in different lectures when they gave feedback to the lecturers.

Vilka svagheter har kursen?

- Explain more often why and how a speculative, provocative, and dystopian fits into a designer's profile.
- Work on the book from early on (maybe have more workshops with book reading sections. we already had 2 such workshops)
- Probably introduce handbooks or basic material on speculative and provocative design.
- Reconsider whether ChatGPT should be allowed for the creation of the prototypes.
- For the next year, I might consider reducing the number of main teachers. This year, due to the teachers' schedules, we required more help. However, it is usually very beneficial to have guest lectures at the very least. However, unlike what some of the students claim, since this is the last year students, they should learn to get feedback from a broader range of teachers and prepare themselves for entering a more advanced academic/professional level. Learning to take criticism is part of the skill they need to develop more extensively.
- Prepare the students to develop skills that allows them to take more broad-spectrum and serious reviews and feedback around their work.
